Huntsman Springs

A masterpiece in the Teton Valley of Idaho

Set in a deep green valley beneath the Teton Mountains is the latest masterpiece from acclaimed golf course architect David McLay Kidd, whose award-winning designs include Bandons Dunes and The Castle Course at St Andrews. Huntsman Springs in Driggs, Idaho is a delicately sculpted links layout of spectacular beauty, a championship course that gives rich, natural texture to the landscape.

Huntsman Springs is already winning top accolades from the golf world with honors like "Best of the Best" and "Best Modern Course". Kidd is all about playability, and the course is highlighted by large, soft greens that average 10,000 square feet and offer a uniquely testing challenge to players of all levels.

The course looks up at a series of handsome residences designed in a rustic mountain style of stone and dark woods. And although golf is clearly the star of the family-oriented vacation community, other amenities play an important role in the Huntsman lifestyle. A new Wellness Center, fly fishing in seven lakes and nearby rivers, a 500-acre nature preserve and miles of hiking and biking trails in nearby national parks appeal to everyone with a love of the outdoors. And just over the mountain is Jackson Hole, the modern resort town, which offers an
